HOLY CROSS MEDICAL GROUP WELCOMES RHEUMATOLOGIST KONSTANTIN URAZOV, M.D.

Fort Lauderdale, Florida – May 14, 2024 – Rheumatologist Konstantin Urazov, M.D. has joined Holy Cross Medical Group, a multi-specialty physician employed group of more than 130 physicians providing services throughout Broward County.

Dr. Urazov's focus areas include rheumatoid arthritis, systemic lupus erythematosus, Sjogren's syndrome, psoriatic arthritis, osteoarthritis and osteoporosis. Prior to joining Holy Cross, Dr. Urazov was an associate physician at South Florida Rheumatology in Hollywood, Florida where he evaluated, diagnosed and managed a variety of diseases impacting joints, muscles and bones; conducted synovial fluid analysis; administered intra-articular or soft tissue injections; analyzed blood tests, X-rays, MRIs and more; and collaborated with orthopedic surgeons, physical therapists and primary care doctors to provide patients with comprehensive care.

While earning his Bachelor of Arts in Sociology from Stony Brook University on Long Island, New York, Dr. Urazov was a pharmacy technician at a local CVS. He then pursued a medical degree from Xavier University School of Medicine in Oranjestad, Aruba, graduating with honors. During med school, he served as a keynote speaker at an educational conference and clinical ambassador who provided feedback to the New York State Accreditation Board. He's also volunteered at community events in Aruba and New York, providing free health screenings to attendees.

Dr. Urazov returned to New York for his internal medicine residency at Long Island Community Hospital in Patchogue, serving as chief resident, and relocated to Florida for his rheumatology fellowship at Larkin Community Hospital Palm Springs Campus in Hialeah, where he was chief fellow.

Holy Cross Health Honors 97-year-old Volunteer Carmel Provencal

In recognition of National Volunteer Month, Holy Cross Health in Fort Lauderdale celebrated 97-year-old Carmel Provencal, who has been volunteering for the hospital since 1959, when the Sisters of Mercy first arrived from Pittsburgh.

The sisters arrived in the summer wearing black wool habits. Provencal immediately told them that she was a seamstress and would make them habits suitable for Florida, so she made them white cotton habits. In her 65 years of service at Holy Cross, the former home economics teacher has logged 45,360 volunteer hours. Provencal also fashioned quilts for palliative care patients, knit caps and blankets for babies and crafted bags that attached to walkers. Even today, she still sews.

"Carmel embodies the core values of Holy Cross," said Mark Doyle, President and CEO of Holy Cross Health, who presented Provencal with a plaque, flowers and a superhero t-shirt inscribed with the words 'The Remarkables.' "She is an integral part of Holy Cross and a true treasure to us. Over the years, she has touched the lives of so many here at Holy Cross and in our community."

Members of the Holy Cross Health leadership team celebrated Provencal for her dedication to the hospital's mission.

Provencal also supports the hospital as a member of Holy Cross Health's Philanthropy Circle.

"Everybody at Holy Cross was always so good to me," Provencal said. "If they want me to come back as a volunteer, I'd gladly say yes."

ABOUT HOLY CROSS HEALTH

A member of Trinity Health, Fort Lauderdale-based Holy Cross Hospital, dba Holy Cross Health, is a full-service, non-profit, Catholic, teaching hospital operating in the spirit of the Sisters of Mercy.
